In 1939, to celebrate the election of Pope Pius XII, a Roman shopkeeper commissioned the company F.Ili Rossi of Molina di Barasso to create a pipe with the Pope's face. The series, planned in a limited number of pieces, was initially very successful among tourists and collectors, but also aroused controversy and criticism from those who considered it blasphemous. Under pressure from the authorities, the shopkeeper was forced to withdraw sales, and many pieces remained unsold.
