Stanwell H.C. Andersen: the Danish pipe series with a dual stem

The Stanwell H.C. Andersen series is one of the most iconic collections from Stanwell, appreciated for its elegant design and a unique feature: the dual stem. This line represents a perfect balance between tradition, innovation, and Danish cultural heritage.

The origin of the H.C. Andersen name

The series is named after Hans Christian Andersen, the famous writer of fairy tales such as The Little Mermaid and The Ugly Duckling. This choice reflects Stanwell's strong connection to Danish tradition and cultural identity.

A distinctive feature: two stems in one pipe

The most distinctive element of the Stanwell H.C. Andersen pipes is the inclusion of two interchangeable stems:

- a short stem, ideal for everyday use
- a long churchwarden-style stem, perfect for relaxed smoking sessions

This solution makes the pipe highly versatile, allowing it to adapt to different situations and preferences. Churchwarden pipes are known for providing a cooler, slower smoke, ideal for moments of relaxation.

This Stanwell H.C. Andersen Model II pipe features a smooth natural finish that enhances the grain of the briar, making each pipe unique and authentic. The clean surface highlights the quality of the wood and reflects the classic aesthetics of Danish design.

Medium-sized, capacious cylindrical bowl

The pipe is equipped with a medium-sized bowl, cylindrically drilled and notably capacious, making it ideal for long and satisfying smoking sessions. Its balanced proportions ensure an even burn and a comfortable smoking experience.

Metal band with a refined touch

An elegant metal band connects the shank to the stem, creating continuity in the pipe's line while adding strength and a refined aesthetic detail. This element enhances the overall design without compromising functionality.
