Radice Rind 2026: Technical Analysis of the Billiard Pipe "Chubby Interpretation"

Architecture and Proportions: The "Chubby" Character

The distinctive element of this model is the carefully designed disproportion between the bowl and the shank. This design choice defines a "chubby" profile, giving the pipe a solid visual presence and a weight distribution that enhances stability during hand use.

Bowl Geometry

The bowl, of medium size, features a profile that slightly tapers toward the top (tapered bowl).

Tapered drilling

Unlike standard drilling, the chamber is slightly conical. This internal architecture is designed to optimize combustion toward the base of the chamber, improving the aromatic performance of the tobacco in the final stages of the smoke.

Rim

The upper rim is finished smooth and flat, preserving the natural color of the briar.

Rind Finish and Materials

The Rind series is renowned for its handcrafted rustic finish, executed manually to enhance the natural irregularities of the briar and increase its heat dissipation capacity.

Color

The light brown tone applied to the rustication allows the pipe's volumes to remain visually readable without weighing down its overall line, maintaining a bright and natural appearance.

Stem

The fitting features a black acrylic tapered stem. Acrylic ensures the black color remains unchanged over time, resisting oxidation and the acidity of saliva, while the standard tapered shape provides classic comfort in the mouthpiece.
