Ser Jacopo R1 Pipe - Rusticated Horn with Saddle Stem

In this Horn shape interpretation, the Ser Jacopo R1 is a pipe distinguished by its slender silhouette and strong personality.

Aesthetics and Briar Craftsmanship

The body of the pipe is enhanced by a deep, pronounced rustication, a handcrafted finish that creates a striking three-dimensional texture, both visually and tactilely. In addition to giving the pipe a bold yet elegant character, this finish provides an excellent grip and optimal heat dissipation, keeping the pipe cool during use.

The "light Horn" line develops with an organic, fluid curvature that gently sweeps upward, mimicking the natural shapes from which it takes its name.

The Stem and Elegant Proportions

Despite being a medium-compact pipe, Ser Jacopo has managed to infuse this model with unique momentum and elegance through a clever structural design:

- The Saddle Design: The stem is crafted from polished black acrylic with a refined saddle stem configuration.
- Elongated Profile: The slightly elongated proportions of the stem balance the forward thrust of the shank, lengthening the pipe's overall silhouette and lending it a formal grace that softens its compactness.

Chamber Geometry and Smoking Performance

From a technical standpoint, the interior of the pipe is engineered to deliver a consistent, focused smoking experience:

- Capacity: The chamber is of medium capacity, making it the perfect choice for daily smokes or for savoring complex blends without excessively long burn times.
- Bore: The internal bore is slightly conical. This specific architecture accommodates the natural taper of the tobacco toward the bottom, promoting a steady draw and an excellent concentration of flavors.
