Davide Iafisco: Freehand Pipe in Ebonite and Horn

This artisan pipe by Davide Iafisco represents a perfect balance between contemporary design and masterful craftsmanship. Iafisco is a prominent figure in the Italian high-end pipe scene and a founding member of the Accademia della Pipa—alongside Mimmo Romeo, Giocchino Sauro, and Gabriele Dal Fiume—an institution dedicated to preserving the excellence of Italian pipe making worldwide.

Artisan Features

This model is a small, freehand pipe characterized by a harmonious and compact quarter-bent silhouette. The briar features a fine, deep black sandblast finish that highlights the wood's natural grain, elegantly contrasted by a smooth, polished rim.

The tobacco chamber is generous relative to the pipe's overall size and features an oblique, slightly conical drilling designed to optimize the smoking experience. The rim is equipped with an "easy load" bevel to facilitate filling.

Technical Details

A distinctive element of this creation is the contrast of materials: the black German ebonite stem, hand-shaped from rod stock, connects to the shank via an elegant horn ferrule. Although the visual impact recalls an "army" style, the pipe features a standard tenon, ensuring technical precision and stability.

An Ideal Travel Companion

Thanks to its lightweight and compact dimensions, this Davide lafisco pipe is designed to be a reliable companion on the go. It is a cozy, refined object, crafted for those who seek the pleasure of a quality smoke in a portable format, without compromising on aesthetic sophistication.
