Nicola Pirocco Smooth Army Pipe in Natural Briar with Cumberland Stem

Handmade pipe crafted entirely by hand in Abruzzo, Italy, by Italian artisan Nicola Pirocco, who personally oversees every stage of the process, from selecting the briar to the final finishing. This piece offers a balanced combination of compact dimensions, functionality, and clean lines, qualities appreciated by those looking for a pipe intended for everyday use.

The pipe features a classic straight Army shape, a design that combines practicality with elegance. The mount is enhanced by an ebony ring, a detail that creates a refined contrast with the natural color of the briar.

The briar has been carefully selected for its quality and finished smooth, without any added stain, allowing the wood's light natural color and authentic grain to remain fully visible. This choice highlights the material in its purest form, emphasizing the quality of the raw briar.

The stem is made from hand-cut Cumberland rod stock and has been entirely hand-filed, a traditional process that requires both precision and time. The fishtail bit provides a comfortable mouthfeel while smoking and harmoniously completes the pipe's overall profile.

Although it belongs to the medium-small size category, the bowl offers a generous tobacco capacity. The tobacco chamber is slightly conical.

Every Nicola Pirocco pipe is a unique piece, born from the Italian tradition of pipe making and the careful handcrafting of briar, intended for those who appreciate natural materials, balanced proportions, and meticulous construction in every detail.
