Handmade Manù by Emanuele Bruno Pipe - Sandblasted Straight Nosewarmer

Manù pipe, created by artisan Emanuele Bruno in his workshop in Matera. Technically and stylistically trained within the Accademia della Pipa — a prestigious association founded by the Masters Mimmo Romeo, Gabriele Dal Fiume, Davide Iafisco, and Gioacchino Sauro — Bruno stands out for a production focused on compact, lightweight, and well-balanced pipes. His construction philosophy blends the rigor of traditional shapes with personal reworkings and modern freehand lines.

Technical Specifications and Design

- Nosewarmer Profile and Brandy/Chimney Line: This compact and essential nosewarmer model recalls the soft proportions of the Brandy silhouette, developing vertically toward a slightly Chimney bowl. The result is a collected profile with a strong personality.
- Sandblasted Finish: The surface treatment via sandblasting highlights the natural grain and structure of the briar, offering an excellent tactile feel and a firm grip.
- Medium/Small-Capacity Bowl: The chamber, designed for short and concentrated smokes, features a slightly conical drilling toward the bottom.
- Tapered Ebanite Stem: The tapered stem is entirely hand-cut from an ebanite rod, finishing with a standard profile.

Usage Note: Due to its compact dimensions and reduced shank length, this pipe is particularly comfortable to carry and ideal for short smokes.
