Italian handcrafted pipe Valbruna - Sandblasted 1 Jellyfish, Octagonal Panel

Italian handcrafted pipe by the brand Valbruna, made in Gabicce Mare by Simone Gaudenzi, belonging to the Sandblasted 1 Jellyfish classification. A medium-sized straight pipe characterized by an essential construction and a meticulous focus on the geometry of the bowl.

The surface undergoes a delicate sandblasting designed to preserve the briar's figure and highlight its grain, which in this piece appears homogeneous and regular. The finishing process does not exaggerate the wood's texture, but subtly accompanies it, allowing the grain to play a prominent role in defining the pipe's aesthetic.

The bowl features a distinctive octagonal section with a Panel construction, giving the shape a precise division of surfaces and a neat, geometric appearance. The contrast between the regularity of the panels and the natural flow of the grain creates a compelling balance between artisan craftsmanship and the structure of the wood.

The chamber is medium capacity with slightly conical drilling, while the stem is a tapered type made of black acrylic. The clean line of the stem complements the bowl's geometry and the understated character of the sandblasting without adding weight to the silhouette.

A particularly notable design detail is the flat base, which allows the pipe to rest securely in an upright position. It is therefore a true pipe sitter—a functional feature that becomes an integral part of the shape's design.

This Valbruna Sandblasted 1 Jellyfish interprets the Italian handcrafted pipe through a language of precise geometry and natural materials. The octagonal Panel bowl, delicate sandblasting, regular briar grain, black acrylic tapered stem, and flat base define a balanced ensemble in which Simone Gaudenzi's stylistic exploration remains closely tied to the pipe's functionality.
