Dunhill The White Spot Rubybark 4122 – Sandblasted Silver-Banded Poker Pipe (2026)

The Dunhill The White Spot Rubybark 4122 is a newly crafted English pipe, produced in 2026, which interprets one of the most iconic silhouettes of the British pipe-making tradition: the Poker. A straight pipe with balanced proportions, it stands out for its practical shape and Dunhill's unmistakable craftsmanship.

The Rubybark finish, with its distinct sandblasted texture, brings out the briar's natural grain, creating a tactile feel and a striking appearance. The bowl’s rim is left smooth in an Easy Load configuration, forming a refined contrast with the sandblasted body. The shank is adorned with a sterling silver band—an elegant and functional accent that harmoniously completes the pipe’s profile.

The medium-to-small capacity chamber features a cylindrical drilling, making it ideal for shorter, easily manageable smoking sessions. Overall, the pipe is medium-sized, while its straight alignment and classic Poker geometry ensure a natural grip and easy handling.

The mouthpiece is crafted from black ebonite with a tapered profile and a Fishtail bit—a traditional layout that maintains a clean, coherent line true to the classic character of the model.

As a whole, this Dunhill Rubybark 4122 is a well-balanced, practical, and versatile pipe, particularly suited for those who appreciate straight, compact shapes. The manageable chamber size, lightweight feel, and comfortable proportions make it a fine companion for daily use throughout the day.

A 2026 Dunhill release that brings together the distinctive identity of the Rubybark finish, the classic nature of the Poker shape, and the signature construction details of The White Spot manufacture.
