Francesco Ganci: The Light Rustic Chubby Shape and Natural Finishes of Ligurian Tradition

Entirely handcrafted in Liguria, Italy, this pipe bears the signature of Francesco Ganci, an artisan who has transformed his passion for wood and traditional pipe making into a personal pursuit focused on ergonomics, balanced proportions and the experimentation of natural finishes.

In his Ligurian workshop, each briar block is carefully interpreted according to its natural structure, giving life to distinctive smoking instruments that feel solid in the hand and display meticulous attention to detail throughout every stage of construction.

Design and Finish: Light Rustic Texture with Oil Treatment and UVA Exposure

This creation stands out for its compact proportions and highly distinctive surface treatment.

Compact Chubby Silhouette: The Chubby shape is characterised by a generous, rounded bowl connected to a short, sturdy shank. This balanced design provides a substantial, stable and comfortable grip while keeping the overall dimensions compact without compromising the thickness of the bowl walls.

Light "Tanned" Rustic Finish: The briar surface features an exceptionally tactile light rustic finish, achieved through a distinctive artisanal process. The exterior of the wood is treated with natural oil and subsequently exposed to controlled UVA rays. This technique encourages natural surface oxidation — effectively giving the briar a form of "tan" — resulting in warm, golden and vibrant tones that will continue to develop and mature with use.

Smooth Easy Load Rim: In contrast with the sculpted texture of the bowl, the upper edge of the tobacco chamber (rim) features an Easy Load configuration, slightly flared inwards and left completely smooth. This detail creates a clean visual contrast and facilitates tobacco loading.

Construction Details: Ebonite Mouthpiece and Olive Wood Band

The junction between the shank and the mouthpiece celebrates the combination of traditional materials and the natural wood species of the Mediterranean region.

Olive Wood Band: The end of the shank features an olive wood band, a wood species deeply associated with the Ligurian landscape. Its warm, natural grain harmonises beautifully with the golden highlights of the rustic briar, creating a seamless and elegant transition between the materials.

Black Ebonite Mouthpiece: The mouthpiece is precisely turned from black ebonite, a material appreciated for its softness when bitten and the comfort it provides between the teeth during smoking.
